Could Write a Book About It

"Nine years ago after my little girl was born dead, I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about four months. The next year I became the mother of a fine 11 pound baby boy. After he was born, I kept on with the medicine to build me up. Four months ago I was nervous and rundown and suffered from other troubles which I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would relieve so I started taking it and now I feel fine again. Many of my friends could write a book on the good the Vegetable Compound has done them."—Mrs. W. THE ROSE IN THE DARK

BY ROY VICKERS

COPYRIGHT, 1934 BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER 35
Bartholomew's first shock of the revelation that he was the father of the child who had been born to the woman other than the one he had married, was the first of a series of shocks which were to shake him to the foundations of his life. He was a man of a very strong character, and he was a man of a very strong faith. He was a man of a very strong faith in the power of God, and he was a man of a very strong faith in the power of his own will. He was a man of a very strong faith in the power of his own will, and he was a man of a very strong faith in the power of his own will.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure
By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

THURSDAY. One more day and then it will be Saturday. I am always glad when me and Jubilee wake up on Thursday morning, and I am glad when we wake up on Friday, and I am glad of all when it is Saturday.
I got up and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and went down and done my work, and it was warmer than it had been, and what snow had been on the ground and on the roofs was nearly all melted, and I milked the dumbered brutes and was feeding my face when the doorbell rang and Mr. Wagmore came in when my father opened the door. We were all surprised to see him, and my mother got up and set a chair for him, and he said he had come to ask me if any of my bunch had got hurt on a wire at his house a few days ago, and I told him about the Lost Bag of Tripe pulling the wire loose from his window and getting his thumb burnt by scraping the outside of the wire. Then he said the mother of the Lost Bag of Tripe had sent a lawyer to see him and they had threatened to sue him for ten thousand dollars for damages, but he said he would tell them to go ahead. The Lost Bag of Tripe had no business in his yard, and no business fooling with the wire, and he pulled so hard it had come against a light wire and might have killed him. Then he thanked me and went, and my folks asted me all about it, and I got blamed for it.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy
By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian's Gibbs Vex Madge
I HAVE often wondered whether Lillian does not have some motive behind the giving about Philip Veritzen which she occasionally aims at me. But whatever her reason, her teasing annoys me so much that I have to remind myself forcibly of her loyal friendship for me and the many kindly services she has rendered me. I should fly out at her.

Waiting until I could control my voice before answering, I said casually:
"Mr. Veritzen's artistic ideas are the one thing—"
"You can have anything else but," Lillian finished. "All right, I'm not insisting you send for him. But I just wanted to slip you a friendly tip to be prepared for him. He's one ubiquitous, also gregarious soul our Phil and he's stay'd put over there at that hotel longer than I ever thought he would. He hasn't paid but one call here, has he?"
"No, thanks be to Allah," I intoned. "And he only stayed but a few minutes."

"He's been over to Helena's several times. She's quite flattered. Great theatrical producers don't sit on her doorstep every day as they do on yours so she's making him royally welcome. But I'll bet he shows up some time today with some flaboyant scheme or other."

"Why do you want to spoil the morning?" I said pettishly. "Let's go on with our planning. Are you and Harry going to be here for dinner or at Helena's?"
"She's asked us," Lillian and doubtfully.
"And I hope you've accepted," I said laughing, knowing the reassurance she needed. "I wish she'd invited more of the family. The fewer we have for dinner tonight the better I shall be pleased. What say, Katherine—suppose we have an

"I was very tired," he murmured. "That you did not see your husband in spite of your fatigue. You see, from the jury's point of view, a young bride, forced by the exigencies of her profession to postpone her honeymoon, would be as eager to meet her husband as he to meet her. When your husband called did you know that it was he?"
"Oh no. No. I didn't know that it was Lester."
"But when your father returned with his message, did you not find it strange that your husband should not have insisted on seeing you?"
"I gathered from what my father said that he had told Lester that I had not yet arrived."
"A strange course for your father to pursue!"
"You must remember," stammered Lillian, "that my father didn't want me to be Lester's wife."
"Was there a reason for such a strong aversion?"
"Halle looked at him in despair. "Mr. Broom's reputation," insisted Mr. Perle. "Was perhaps not quite satisfactory from your father's point of view." Forgive me pressing this point but did Mr. Broom drink more than—"
"Yes, yes," Halle grasped at this. It shot grotesquely through her mind that Lester would not in the least mind being branded a habitual drunkard after his death. "Am I afraid he did drink?"
"Ah!" Mr. Perle sounded relieved. "Now, think very carefully. Was Mr. Broom intoxicated when he came to your father's house last night?"
"I believe he was."
"Ah!" said Mr. Perle. "And now let us go over all these facts again, one by one."
One hour later Halle was beginning to feel giddy with the strain, but Mr. Perle remained singularly blind to her distress.
To Be Continued.

Could Write a Book About It

"Nine years ago after my little girl was born dead, I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about four months. The next year I became the mother of a fine 11 pound baby boy. After he was born, I kept on with the medicine to build me up. Four months ago I was nervous and rundown and suffered from other troubles which I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would relieve so I started taking it, and now I feel fine again. Many of my friends could write a book on the good the Vegetable Compound has done them."—Mrs. W. CHAPTER 35

Bartholomew's first shock of the revelation that he had been deceived by the man who had been his friend, his father, his mother, his brother, his sister, his wife, his child, his life, his soul, his everything, was a shock that he could not describe. He was not a man of words, but he was a man of feeling, and he felt that he had been deceived by the man who had been his friend, his father, his mother, his brother, his sister, his wife, his child, his life, his soul, his everything, was a shock that he could not describe.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

THURSDAY. One more day and then it will be Saturday. I am always glad when me and Jubilee wake up on Thursday morning, and I am glad when we wake up on Friday, and I am glad of all when it is Saturday.

I got up and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and went down and done my work, and it was warmer than it had been, and what snow had been on the ground and on the roofs was nearly all melted, and I milked the dumbered brutes and was feeding my face when the doorbell rang and Mr. Wagnor came in when my father opened the door. We were all surprised to see him, and my mother got up and sat a chair for him, and he said he had come to see me if any of my bunch had got hurt on a wire at his house a few days ago, and I told him about the Lost Bag of Tripe pulling the wire loose from his window and getting his thumb burnt by scraping the outside off of the wire. Then he said the mother of the Lost Bag of Tripe had sent a lawyer to see him and they had threatened to sue him for ten thousand dollars for damages, but he said he would tell them to go ahead. The Lost Bag of Tripe had no business in his yard, and no business fooling with the wire, and he pulled so hard it had come against a light wire and might have killed him. Then he thanked me and went, and my folks asted me all about it, and I got blamed for it.

"I was very tired," he murmured. "But you did not see your husband in spite of your fatigue. You see, from the jury's point of view, a young bride, forced by the exigencies of her profession to postpone her honeymoon, would be as eager to meet her husband as he to meet her. When your husband called did you know that it was he?"

"Oh no. No, I didn't know that it was Lester."

"But when your father returned with his message, did you not find it strange that your husband should not have insisted on seeing you?"

"I gathered from what my father said that he had told Lester that I had not yet arrived."

"A strange course for your father to pursue."

"You must remember," stammered Hallie, "that my father didn't want me to be Lester's wife."

"Was there a reason for such a strong aversion?"

Hallie looked at him in despair. "Mr. Broom's reputation," insisted Mr. Perle, "was perhaps not quite satisfactory from your father's point of view. Forgive me pressing this point but did Mr. Broom drink more than—"

"Yes, yes," Hallie gasped at this. "It shot grotesquely through her mind that Lester would not in the least mind being branded a habitual drunkard after his death. 'I'm afraid he did drink'."

"Ah," Mr. Perle sounded relieved. "Now, think very carefully. Was Mr. Broom intoxicated when he came to your father's house last night?"

"I believe he was."

"Ah," said Mr. Perle. "And now let us go over all these facts again, one by one."

An hour later Hallie was beginning to feel giddy with the strain, but Mr. Perle remained singularly blind to her distress.

"Naturally, my best services—my full powers—will be at your disposal," he said. "And that brings us to the other matter which lies between us. I should like to broach it without delay."

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy
By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian's Glee Vex Madge

I HAVE often wondered whether Lillian does not have some motive behind the giving about Philip Veritzen which she occasionally aims at me. But whatever her reason, her teasing annoys me so much that I have to remind myself forcibly of her loyal friendship for me and the many kindly services she has rendered me. I should fly out at her.

Waiting until I could control my voice before answering, I said casually:

"Mr. Veritzen's artistic ideas are the one thing—"

"You can have anything else but," Lillian finished. "All right. I'm not insisting you send for him. But I just wanted to slip you a friendly tip to be prepared for him. He's one ubiquitous, also gregarious soul. Our Phil and he stay'd put over there at that hotel longer than I ever thought he would. He hasn't paid but one call here, has he?"

"No, thanks be to Allah," I intoned. "And he only stayed but a few minutes."

"He's been over to Helena's several times. She's quite flattered. Great theatrical producers don't sit on her doorstep every day as they do on yours so she's making him royally welcome. But I'll bet he shows up some time today with some flaboyant scheme or other."

"Why do you want to spoil the morning?" I said pettishly. "Let's go on with our planning. Are you and Harry going to be here for dinner or at Helena's?"

"She's asked us," Lillian and doubtfully.

"And I hope you've accepted," I said laughing, knowing the reassurance she needed. "I wish she'd invited more of the family. The fewer we have for dinner tonight the better I shall be pleased. What say, Katherine—suppose we have an early old-fashioned supper about 5 o'clock? Then we can get Junior and Roderick off to bed earlier."

"How are you going to manage the other two? They ought to be in bed by eleven so that the Tiers can get at the basement, but if there's a party here—"

"I have a scheme," I said. "But the first thing I'm going to do is to tire them out. I'm going to get them up now, all four of the boys, and keep them so busy today with the decorations putting up and trimming of the tree and bringing in the Yule log that they'll be glad to crawl in bed when night comes."

"You mean you're going to let Junior and Roderick trim their own tree?" Lillian asked with disapproving incredulity in her voice.

"Not this year," I answered. "Not as long as Junior is content to let it be trimmed for him. When it's no longer a surprise to be anticipated with zest then I'll let him trim his own. That isn't true this year, however. So we're going to send Junior and Roderick to bed as soon after supper as possible. They will have seen the tree brought into the house and set up in the living room, and then they'll trot off to bed, while Bill and Henry trim the tree."

Veritzen Arrives

"With suggestions," I hope," Lillian commented dryly.

"If I can manage them adroitly," I said. "But it is to be their tree. I'm not trimming it for—"

"For Phil Veritzen," Lillian agreed promptly. "I'm glad to hear it. I thought perhaps you thought it would be a graceful tribute to him."

"If you mention that man's name again today," I threatened as I rose abruptly. "I'll forget that it's Christmas and give you what you've needed for some time. Will you excuse me. I must wake the boys."

CHARGED WITH LAZINESS

Guiltily Smiling of Acidity!
That persistent feeling of dread—that clouded mind—that lack of faith and fire—that punch that decides no many ideas in half an hour—are all usually due to an acid system.
Excess food, formed in the stomach as a result of our unwholesome habits, causes acidity, which causes sourness and burning and sets up poisonous poisons in the system. It interferes with the stomach's normal function and causes indigestion, flatulence, heartburn, and all the other troubles of an acid system.

MAY DECIDE BIG TEN WINNER SATURDAY

FOOTBALL WARFARE TO REACH HIGHEST POINT ON SATURDAY

Championship of Conference Hangs in Balance; Wildcats Meet Badgers.

BY PAUL NICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer.
CHICAGO, Nov. 13—All the fire of the Big Ten football championship battle front will reach its most intense point Saturday and then die down while the three contenders adopt watchful waiting habits.

While the fight will be considered all but over with the Wisconsin-Northwestern and Michigan-Minnesota games, four more battles will remain to supply followers of all three potential champions with considerable "if" reasoning.

This is how the "ifs" figured it out in advance today:

If Northwestern defeats Wisconsin and if Minnesota defeats the Michigan, Northwestern will win undisputed possession of the title Saturday as the Wildcats finish their conference campaign.

If Wisconsin defeats the Northwestern and Michigan defeats Minnesota, Michigan will be considered the undisputed champion although the Wolverines will have one game left with Chicago, a team which Michigan promises to defeat easily on the following Saturday.

"If" Again
If Wisconsin defeats Northwestern and Minnesota defeats Michigan, then Purdue will be considered the rightful claimant for the title if Purdue does the expected and defeats its old rival, Indiana, next week. Purdue then would have a record of five victories and one defeat or an average of .833 while Northwestern and Michigan would have records of four won and one lost each with identical percentages of .800.

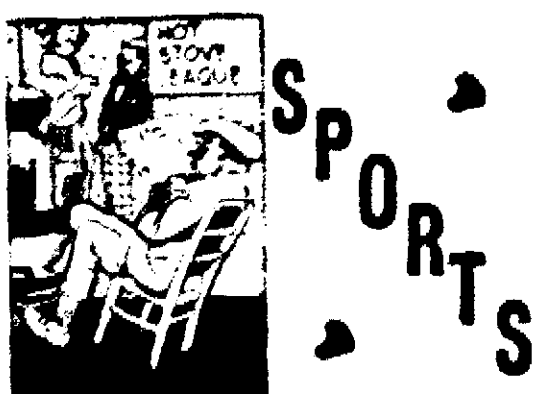

If Michigan loses to Minnesota and then defeats Chicago, if Northwestern loses to Wisconsin and if Indiana ties Purdue then Michigan, Purdue and Northwestern would share the title without reservation or dispute.

May Tie for Title
The most probable "ifs" of the list, however, pointed to twin championships between the strong Michigan and Northwestern teams.

All the teams involved in Saturday's "crucial" games finished their heavy drills today in good condition and in high spirits. Northwestern stressed defense; Wisconsin worked on offense; Minnesota drilled under Tad Wileman, assistant Gopher coach who once directed the gridiron destinies of Michigan, and Michigan attempted to build a defense to stop the rushes of Jack Manders, Minnesota's line pounding fullback.

Illinois still ranked as a heavy favorite over Chicago's weak team although Coach Bob Zuppke drove his Illini through a long, hard workout last night to keep them on edge for the battle.

Notre Dame's army of football players, meanwhile, took the Drake game Saturday with less seriousness than the semester examinations although Coach Knute Rockne or-

WITH the ushering in of the 1937 hunting season, there is certain to be a lot of rabbits shot that are victims of the dread disease known as rabbit fever. If you insist on not being bothered, call it by the correct name, tularemia. It can't be pronounced either.

Dr. Lloyd Arnold of the University of Illinois warns hunters to be wary of diseased rabbits. He states that a sick rabbit will refuse to run when kicked out of the brush. When a rabbit refuses to run, Dr. Arnold continues, don't shoot. It is sick and you will be too if you eat it.

There will be a lot of hunters who will not abide by this for two reasons. The first group will not because they are contrary enough to shoot sitting rabbits just because someone told them they shouldn't. The other group will be those who can't see giving the rabbits all the breaks. If they let him sit, they won't get to take him home—if they make him run before trying to shoot they won't get to take him home either. Quite simple, I should say. They're told not to shoot him while sitting, and they can't hit him on the run. It looks like a good year for the bunnie.

It has never failed to be the case in past years that the advent of hunting did not bring with it a large number of fatalities. It seems this space can well be occupied in a warning to local hunters to use caution in the use of their guns. A full game bag is a source of joy to any hunter but a shot misused through fear of causing human injury certainly should not cause any hunter to feel cheated. There will be a lot of hunters who, a lot more than there are any need for, there is a difference between the collecting of the carcass of another rabbit and the saving of a human life. Be careful where you shoot!

4 Horsemen To Gallop Against Cagle, Friedman

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Nov. 13—A game with the "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame on one side and Benny Friedman and Red Cagle on the other is one of the prospects which is likely to become a fact under the guidance of the football division of Mayor Walker's committee on unemployment relief. A battle between New York University, which already has offered the services of its team, and Colgate, high scoring aggregation of the east, is another.

Cagle, all-American halfback with Army in 1928 and 1929, has signed to play with the New York Giants, a professional team for the remainder of the season. He has been coaching at Mississippi A & M this year without much success.

Canzoneri Confident of Beating Singer for Title

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—Tony Canzoneri hopes to outslug, outdistance and out-luck Al Singer, the world's lightweight champion, tomorrow night.

In the first place, Tony has been over the 15 round route many times, has never been knocked out and insists that the distance will kill Singer's chances of retaining his precious title.

Up at the Gus Wilson camp, Tony has been training for distance. He has been schooling himself to go the entire route at a pace he feels Singer never will be able to follow.

Marion Nimrods Prepare for Opening of Hunting Season

LOCAL GAME WARDEN ISSUES INSTRUCTIONS CONCERNING LAWS

Protector and Deputies To Patrol County To Check Hunting Violations.

MARION gamblers, along with hunters throughout the state are getting the weapons into shape in pleasant anticipation of the opening on Saturday of the hunting season. Rabbits, pheasants, and Hungarian partridge become legal prey at one hour before sunrise on Saturday morning. Ducks, woodcock, geese, and most of the shore birds have been in season for some time but as they are not included in the hunting list of the average Marion county hunter they are not so important. The trapping season also opens Saturday.

The opening of the hunting season this year is expected to bring with it the usual number of nimrods who patrol the fields in search of the elusive bunny and other small game. State Game Protector O. H. Nelmeier has issued several last minute instructions concerning the laws governing the shooting of small game by which it is hoped to reduce the law violation to a minimum. Nelmeier and a crop of deputies will patrol the county in an effort to protect the game from those hunters who do not respect the law and persist in obtaining more than the legal limit of game.

The conservation council of the state, having decided that Hungarian partridge are in danger of becoming very scarce or even extinct have reduced the legal limit on this bird from six to four each day. The season on the birds extends from Nov. 15 to Nov. 25, inclusive.

The game laws this year have been changed in several instances from those of last season. For this reason a condensed list of small game laws are being published with the restrictions and conditions under which it may be taken.

Hares or rabbits may be taken anytime between Nov. 15 and Jan. 1. The legal limit each day is five. They may be sold during open season but the use of traps are not allowed.

Fox and mink may be taken between the same dates as rabbits. The trapping season for opossum, raccoon and skunk will include the dates between Nov. 15 and Feb. 1. Muskrat may be trapped in this district from Nov. 15 to March 1.

Ring neck pheasant may be killed from Nov. 15 to 25. The limit is two each day and hen pheasants are not allowed to be killed. Game Protector O. H. Nelmeier states that the practice of shooting of hen pheasants is becoming too prevalent and deputies will be added to prevent their being killed. Vigorous prosecution will follow any apprehended violators of this statute. Jacksnipe may be taken until Dec. 31 with a limit of 15 in one day. Rail may be taken until Nov. 30 with an aggregate limit of 25 in one day.

Edison To Play Business College Team Friday

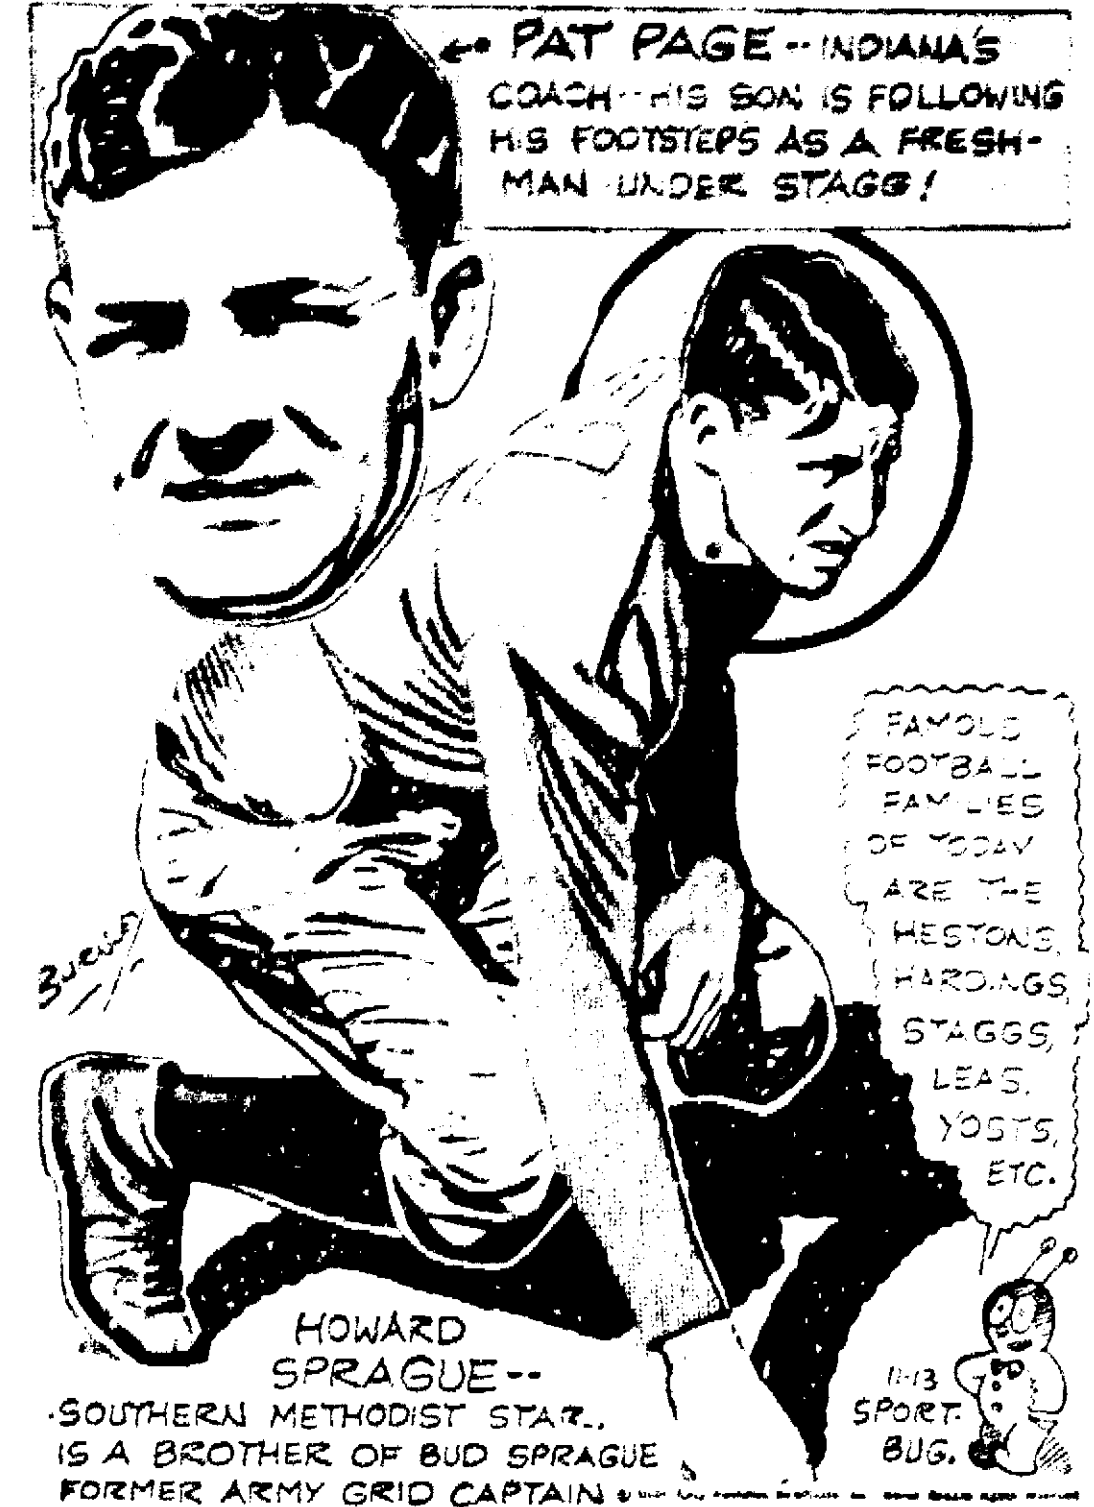

Edison High school will furnish the opposition Friday night on the Edison court for the opening cage game for the Marion Business College basketball team. The Business college team is playing this year under the direction of Donald Cream, former Harding eager and at present member of the Shovel-Y-Indus basketball team, holders of the state Y championship.

Ray Harold and Starling Sonerlot will start at forwards, Van Houten at center, Clarence Racherter and Lowell Halderman at guards for the Business men.

TO BUILD FIELD HOUSE

CHICAGO, Nov. 13—The University of Chicago is to have a new field house for its athletes. Plans for the new structure, to be built at a cost of $700,000, were outlined at a banquet last night. It will be large enough to accommodate 10,000 spectators.

south golf tournament yesterday with a 56-hole score of 157. Burke had rounds of 74 and 71 to annex $400 in prize money. Emmet French, Youngstown, O.; Tommy Armour, Detroit; and Mike Turnesa, Elmford, N. Y., each had a 73 and 74 and will divide the total of $450 prize money for second, third and fourth places.

IN SEASON FINALE

Forest High school, champion of the Heart of Ohio football league, will tackle the strong LaRue team Friday at LaRue. LaRue is undefeated to date but has been held to a tie by Richmond. Forest came out of the Pandora game last week in good condition should give the Marion county team a great tussle. Coach Baum has been working his men hard and they might hand the league leaders their only defeat of the season. Forest and LaRue both end the season Friday.

MUSTANGS TO CLASH WITH NAVY; FORDHAM TACKLES ST. MARY'S

Ancient Rivalries Take Place on Eastern Grid Schedule Saturday.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.
NEW YORK, Nov. 13—Two years ago a new name flashed across the pages of eastern football news as Southern Methodist University, scheduled by Army as an early season rival which would give the Cadets a little good practice, came up to West Point with a brilliant passing game that forced a fine Army team to do its best to win by a 14-13 count.

Since then the Mustangs have held their high national rating. This week, Southern Methodist again ventures into the east, meeting Navy in one of Saturday's leading intersectional battles.

The Mustangs have a good record although they were beaten by Notre Dame and Texas. The Midshipmen, after a poor start of the season, found themselves against Princeton, Ohio State. They expect to make it a real battle Saturday.

Another stranger to the east is St. Mary's of California, which plays Fordham at New York. The galloping Gaels from the Pacific coast are expected to bring much color and a better team to meet the undefeated easterners.

Against this list of newcomers this week is an array of old rivals which total 227 years of football among teams of major importance. Princeton and Yale have been meeting nearly every year for 57 seasons. Williams and Amherst have 46 years of rivalry behind them. The Colgate-Syracuse series dates back for 39 years. Washington & Jefferson-Bucknell 29 and Harvard-Holy Cross 26.

Marty Brill, Notre Dame back, scored his first touchdown in two years against Indiana this year.

PURPLE TEAM LEADS OFFER CHARITY GIFT

Purple Officials Name Terms by Which Needy Will Get $100,000.

By The Associated Press
EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 13—Northwestern University has announced the plan for charity football by offering an immediate advance of $100,000 to the Illinois state unemployment commission, providing certain requests were granted for the Notre Dame-Northwestern game in 1937.

The provisions, named by the executive committee of the university's board of trustees last night, were that the Western conference and Notre Dame agree to transfer of the game from Notre Dame stadium to Soldier Field, Chicago, that Notre Dame agree to give Northwestern the extra proceeds available by such a transfer to a larger stadium, up to $100,000, and that the south park board of Chicago rent Soldier Field free of all charges for the contest.

By its offer, Northwestern would take a chance on obtaining all or part of the $100,000 from the extra receipts after it and Notre Dame received their shares of what the game would bring if played at Notre Dame's stadium.

Notre Dame and the south park board were almost certain to accept the provisions although there remained some doubt as to the reaction of the Western conference today. The conference, through its faculty committee, refused to allow the proposed transfer of the Notre Dame-Northwestern game this year from Dwyer stadium (Northwestern's home field) to Soldier Field for charitable purposes. In refusing the change, the committee said its rule against conference teams playing on only college fields was an inflexible one and that no exceptions could be made.

President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern, however, said he was certain the conference would waive the rule this time.

"Blues" Singer Assists Vallee in NBC Program

DR. WALTER A. MAIER
Dr. Maier speaks every Thursday at 10 p. m. in the Thursday Hour which is heard over the Columbia network.

LARRY HOLMAN, of "Moonlight and Me" fame, helps Rudy Vallee in a new coast-to-coast radio program by singing two special songs of blues songs as guest star of the "Bluesman Hour" Thursday from 8 to 9 p. m. on station WEAF and one of NBC's largest networks.

Returning to the type of melody that carried her from the stage to stardom within two years, Miss Holman will be heard in two bits from her newest Broadway show, "There's a Crowd." These are "Tender" and "Something to Remember You For."

As contrasting tunes, Rudy and his band are heard in slow-tempo sentimental tunes both old and new, college songs and novelty numbers with a light, comic touch.

"The Debutante," an operetta in two acts, from the book by Harry D. Smith, with music by Victor Herbert, will be presented in his series over the WJZ network Thursday at 10 p. m.

Robert Louis Stevenson will be the featured guest at the Arco Birthday Party broadcast over the WEAF network Thursday at 9 p. m.

"Crying Water," an Indian love song by the English composer Bernard Hamblin, to be sung by Janet Bush Hecht, soprano, with a humming quartet and strings, will feature the Maxwell House program as broadcast over the WJZ network Thursday at 9:30 p. m.

Dedicating its program to the American National Red Cross in honor of Red Cross Week, the Jack Frost Melody Moments will feature the international singers over stations associated with the NBC Thursday at 9:30 p. m.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "Symphony in G Minor," will be played by Ludwig Laurier and his Slumber Music ensemble during the broadcast to be heard over the WJZ network Thursday at 11 p. m.

A program of "Prize" hymns will be presented as the Mid-Week Federation Hymn Sing over stations associated with the NBC Thursday at 7 p. m.

An all Al Johnson, program dedicated to Johnson, will be presented by Brad Browne, Al Lewellyn, Brad Reynolds, the Tip Top Quartet, Evan Evans, Irene Benally and the Kokos orchestra, directed by Mark Warnow, during the Ward Tip Top Club hour, scheduled on the Columbia Broadcasting network and WABC Thursday between 7:30 and 8 p. m.

The ingenuity of a patriotic Colonial girl in disclosing the hiding place of a British spy without revealing to him that she was doing so, will be disclosed in the Watchman program over the Columbia network Thursday at 8:45 p. m.

A program of light classics will be presented by a selected group of Columbia artists and an orchestra under the direction of Claude MacArthur, when the Voice of Columbia is heard over WABC and the Columbia network Thursday from 8 to 8:30 p. m.

GERMANY BUILDS ANOTHER GIANT FOR SKY

Germany's latest offering to aviation is the giant Junkers monoplane D-2000, which is now on a tour of Europe. The cruising range and load capacity of this craft are believed to surpass those of the D-10-A. Its span is 150 feet; length 75 feet; its total load is 26,880 pounds and its maximum speed is 170 miles an hour. Four motors of 800 horsepower each supply the power.

MYRNA LOY GETS BIG PART IN "RENEGADES"

Many is the time we've sat in darkened theaters and watched Myrna Loy and wondered why they never gave her any big parts. In answer to the wonderment comes "Renegades," to the Friday and Saturday, with Myrna playing the heroine lead opposite Warner Baxter.

Noah Beery has a featured part in the picture. It's a French Legion story, with Myrna as the traitress.

Myrna Loy was a student in an exclusive Los Angeles school and a pupil of Ruth St. Denis. She began her professional career as a dancer in prologues at motion picture theaters. Her unusual type of beauty and slender grace brought her a role in "What Price Beauty."

From that time on she has appeared more or less regularly in the screen.

"FAST AND LOOSE" COMING TO MARION

"Fast and Loose" with Miriam Hopkins, Carole Lombard, Frank Morgan and Charles Starrett in the principal roles comes to the Marion Friday and Saturday.

The show is taken from the successful stage play of last season, "The Best People," by David Gray and Avery Hopwood. Miss Hopkins was carrying the ingenue lead in Broadway's show, "Lysistrata," when she received her motion picture offer.

Fred Newmeyer, who directed "Queen High," the Charles Ruggles show, directed "Fast and Loose."

BY HALLIE HOUCK.

Kay Francis, wealthy and beautiful Russian girl, marries MacKenna without loving him, telling him this and hoping that a beautiful friendship will grow into love. MacKenna is a poor soldier and in a rage, he goes to Huston, general of the Russian armies, and berates the army system. Huston demands his execution in seven days.

Kay hurries to Huston's headquarters. They fall in love. Her surrender to Huston is purely because of their love. When she asks for her husband's life the next morning, Huston is infuriated to think he has been used to gain a pardon, but later sends the order for release.

DE FOREST PREMIER IN RADIO

GREATEST CREDIT DUE HIM FOR DEVELOPMENT OF WIRELESS

NEW YORK—Made most flexible means of communication the wireless telegraph and telephone, now all summed up in the magic of radio, owes its big debt to Dr. Lee DeForest.

It was he who conceived the idea for a vacuum tube which nearly 20 years ago revolutionized radio. At the time he began his experiments on electronic devices there was a radio tube, but not like the one ultimately developed. The only tube known was the Fleming valve, contained but two elements, a filament or electron emitter, and a plate or collector. It would merely act as a detector of radio signals.

Adds Third Element.
Dr. DeForest, in a sense, added a third element of wire, which he called a grid. It not only made the tube a better detector, but made possible its use as a powerful amplifier as well as making it available for transmission.

Many of the possibilities it opened up, including its incorporation in telephone work for cross-country transmission, are evidenced on every hand in the radio world and in numerous laboratories today.

So important has the vacuum tube become in modern life, that its inventor has been mentioned as a possible winner of the Nobel prize in physics this year.

How he made his discoveries is perhaps best told in Dr. DeForest's own words.

His Own Story.
"Follow me back to 1910," he said. "Evenings found me in a hall bedroom in Chicago, experimenting with a toy called wireless telegraphy."

"I had a spark coil that gave a wicked, crashing spark. A peculiar thing happened. When I operated the spark coil, the Weibach gas light would dim while the spark was on."

Swiftest Way To End Eczema

Says Alabama Man

There is not an excuse in the world for a person to suffer with Eczema. Yet how many people do you see with ugly skin which spoils their whole appearance!

What you want to do is abolish every trace of eczema with Peterson's Ointment, for years nationwide famous for speedily ending Eczema.

The first application of Peterson's takes out the inflammation, brings blessed relief from that painful itching.

Repeated use of this powerfully soothing, healing Ointment assures a marvelously smooth, delicate skin.

Mr. A. W. Turner of Birmingham, Ala., writes: "Was troubled for about 2 yrs. with eczema and after I used Peterson's Ointment for about 4 or 5 times, my trouble entirely disappeared."

One application of Peterson's Ointment will stop the burning and itching of Eczema and one 35c box will prove it—all drug stores—Adv.

Dr. Lee DeForest, inventor and pioneer, displaying a model of one of the early type radio tubes, his development of which gave wireless transmission a real incentive.

was on. I was puzzled. Experiments proved that the effect was only the result of sound waves.

"However, I had become convinced that this phenomenon might be employed in the detection of wireless signals. I placed two platinum wires at different points in the blue flame of a Bunsen gas burner. The two wires were connected to antenna and ground, headphones and a battery. The arrangement worked."

"But this gas flame was merely a laboratory setup. After further experiments, I decided to enclose my heated gas in a glass bulb, using a filament as a source of heat. Some experimental tubes were made up for me, with carbon filaments and platinum plates."

"With antenna connected to the plate and the ground to the filament, together with telephones and battery connected across plate and filament, I was confronted with the by-passing of much of the signal energy through the telephone and battery circuit, with considerable loss of efficiency."

"As a solution, I conceived a third element. At first this took the form of a tinfoil band around the outside of the bulb, but that had little influence on the action of the tube."

Tries Out Wire.
"Next I tried a coiled wire inside the glass bulb. After various arrangements I decided upon a zig-zag length of wire, placed directly between the filament and plate. Experiments proved that the effect was only the result of sound waves.

"But this gas flame was merely a laboratory setup. After further experiments, I decided to enclose my heated gas in a glass bulb, using a filament as a source of heat. Some experimental tubes were made up for me, with carbon filaments and platinum plates."

"With antenna connected to the plate and the ground to the filament, together with telephones and battery connected across plate and filament, I was confronted with the by-passing of much of the signal energy through the telephone and battery circuit, with considerable loss of efficiency."

"As a solution, I conceived a third element. At first this took the form of a tinfoil band around the outside of the bulb, but that had little influence on the action of the tube."

"Next I tried a coiled wire inside the glass bulb. After various arrangements I decided upon a zig-zag length of wire, placed directly between the filament and plate. Experiments proved that the effect was only the result of sound waves.

"However, I had become convinced that this phenomenon might be employed in the detection of wireless signals. I placed two platinum wires at different points in the blue flame of a Bunsen gas burner. The two wires were connected to antenna and ground, headphones and a battery. The arrangement worked."

gentle eyes, for in such habits often angels desire alms."David Lloyd George recently remarked that "patriotism calls us to offer a hand, not a brickbat." David certainly is showing the softening influence of the passing years.Maybe Rudy Vallee's idea in comparing Mr.
Hoover with himself was to jolly the President to the proper spirit in which to write a Thanksgiving proclamation.The surety companies of the country are beginning to refuse to bond gangsters. If the movement becomes general, another easy road to liberty at present enjoyed by the criminal world will be barred.Having thought the matter over, a number of Democratic senators are inclined to doubt the wisdom of the pledge of cooperation made by the titular leaders of the party, feeling that it should be limited to the present year. By the time congress has been assembled a week, there may be a further inclination to forget the pledge altogether.Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, is being boomed to succeed Mayor
"Big Bill" Thompson as executive of the Windy City. There is this to be said for Mr. Harrison; his record doesn't show that he ever gave much time to the waging of war against King George and his myrmidons at the expense of the best interests of Chicago's citizenship.The British parliament has removed the last obstacle in the way of the construction of two mighty liners proposed by the Cunard company by voting to insure them. Thus the race for bigness in ocean liners, temporarily abandoned, may be said to have been resumed.All Americans other than missionaries are fleeing from the Chinese provinces of Kiangsi and Honan in fear of the spread of com-munistism. We take it that it would be going too far to expect the missionaries to exercise the same good sense as that manifested by the Americans who are not laboring in the missionary field and heed the warning to get out while the getting is good.A Hoosier farmer has been given a judgment for $3,000 against the Indiana state entomologist and others as the result of damages sustained by him from the plowing up of his 600-acre field of oats in a state campaign against the corn borer. At times the putting into practice of theories proves mighty expensive.

Preparing for Relief Work.

Overlapping is an outstanding problem in community relief work, overlapping of solicitation and overlapping of affording relief alike.
The Community fund is in great measure, if not wholly, the answer to the solicitation problem, for it does away with the almost cessless solicitation looking to the same end which is the inevitable result of the lack of a central organization to conduct one campaign of solicitation, and one only, annually.To meet the problem of overlapping in the granting of relief, the Community fund organization has very wisely organized a central welfare board of ten members, of which Mrs.
John T. McNamara is chairman, made up of representatives from the various charitable organizations of the city, which is to work in cooperation with the relief department of the municipality. Each charitable organization being represented on the board, it will have the joint experience of all the organizations to guide it in its course and assist it in speedily relief and the expediting of relief, and at the same time stop the duplication of relief which in years past caused an unnecessary drain on the philanthropy of the local citizenship.Another agency, the central welfare com-missionary, a subsidiary of the central welfare board, with a membership of twelve, has been organized with Morgan Burke as chairman.
The work of this latter organization will be the collecting, sorting, reconditioning and issuing of clothing to the needy of the city under the same supervision as that to which all the other relief will be subjected.The report of the organization of the two bodies concluded with the very pleasing announcement that it is the aim of the Community fund officials and the associated charitable organizations to assist all worthy applicants and to use the funds available in such a way that the most good will be done and no family within the city will be deprived of the necessities of life during the coming winter.
If that aim is achieved, despite the fact that the demand for relief the coming winter will probably be greater than ever before, it will be an achievement of which the relief workers, the philanthropically inclined and the city alike may well be proud. It is an accomplishment most devoutly to be wished.

Champions Increase in Letter Rate.

In addressing the twenty-first annual meeting of the Association of National Advertisers, Inc., in Washington this week, Third Assistant Postmaster General Frederick A. Tilson offered some up-to-date and interesting statistics bearing on the estimated appropriations for advertising in 1931, the cost of federal government and the cost and magnitude of the business of the postoffice department.
The purpose of the address was to make plain to the gathering why the postoffice department had decided to ask congress to establish a two-and-a-half cent rate for first class mail.Setting out that the estimated bill of advertising in the United States next year will be $1,400,000,000, of which $450,000,000 will be spent for newspaper space by local advertisers, from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 for classified advertising and $75,000,000 by general or national advertisers in newspaper, magazine, billboard, circular and broadcasting advertising, the third assistant postmaster general pointed out that this was just about one-third the cost of running the government during the year ended June 30, last. These statistics are not offered here so much to give readers a better understanding of the expenditures advertisers plan for next year, but rather as evidence of their faith that business is on the upgrade and that they are planning to go out after it.During the fiscal year ended the last day of June, the government collected from the people of the United States $4,178,000,000, about half of which came from income taxes. Of this total, $1,405,000,000 was devoted to the payment of principal and interest on the national debt; $788,000,000 to war veterans; $328,000,000 to agriculture, including the federal farm board; $828,000,000 to national defense and rivers and harbors; $193,000,000 to the treasury department, including the cost of public buildings; $361,000,000 to the interior, commerce, state, justice and labor departments, District of Columbia, the shipping board and the legislative and executive branches of the government, and,
lastly, $91,000,000 to the postoffice department to make good the difference between its revenues of approximately $705,000,000 and its approximate expenditure of $803,000,000.Now while the statement that the postoffice department is the world's biggest business is erroneous, at least erroneous as regards incomes, for there are a number of American corporations which have incomes in excess of that of the department, there can be no question but what the number of its transactions and its ramifications challenge the world. Last year it handled 17,000,000,000 pieces of first-class mail at an average revenue of 2 1/2 cents; 6,000,000,000 newspapers and periodicals at an average revenue of .47 cents; 4,000,000,000 circulars at 1 1/2 cents; 770,000,000 pieces of fourth-class mail at an average revenue of 18 1/2 cents; 800,000,000 pieces of penalty and franked matter; 350,000,000 pieces of foreign mail at 5 1/2 cents, and 575,000,000 pieces of registered insured, collect-on-delivery, special delivery, special handling, money order and postal savings mail. The staggering aggregate of these items is 29,195,000,000 pieces of mail.The figures showing the postal deficit last year to have been $91,000,000. The general accounting office makes the deficit $98,000,000, but the postoffice department's figures show it to be $58,000,000, a total of $40,000,000 not being properly chargeable to the postoffice department. It is to wipe out this deficit of $58,000,000 that the proposal is made to raise the letter rate from two to two and a half cents, the postal department evidently believing that congress, which fixes postage rates, will never consent to the placing of the increased cost on any other classification of mail.The postoffice department takes the position that it should be self-sustaining; that it should no longer be a burden on the treasury department; that to look to the latter department to assist in sustaining the mail service is a false policy. It holds that a letting-down of the service is unthinkable; that the public would rebel against it and that congress would not approve it, and that the only answer to the problem of balancing the receipts and expenditures of the postoffice department is to raise the first-class rate as recommended.The confessed slayer of a fifteen-year-old high school girl of Detroit was sentenced to life imprisonment within less than twenty hours after his arrest. That kind of court action is liable to prove a deterrent to crime.
Unfortunately, we do not have enough such cases of the expedition of justice to compel the fear of the law there should be in the hearts of criminals.Chairman Alexander Legge, of the farm board, has signified to President Hoover his desire to resign. That Mr. Legge did not accomplish the staying of farm products prices is not to his discredit, as he had to go up against the immutable law of supply and demand.The exhortation of the automobile manufacturers that wages be maintained and not reduced is patriotic and good business sense as well. If wages are maintained the buying power of those employed will not be reduced.
If wages are reduced, it will be but a question of time till the buying power of those employed will be so reduced that there may no longer be demand for the goods produced by them.The representative of the New Zealand government as executive for the mandate over western Samoa claims that the natives want the United States to assume the mandate for the reason that, so they assert, Americans do not enforce prohibition while the New Zealand government does. Maybe so. In the light of the situation here the claim of the Samoans doesn't seem altogether beyond the bounds of reason.Paul C. Wolman, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, says that the manner in which the authors of modern war fiction and the movie directors have pictured the World War doughboy as a mademoisellechasing, liquor-drinking Paris tourist has done more to undermine the principles of patriotism and good citizenship than nearly any other factor in everyday life. What cause those where major purpose is the accumulation of the coin for the principles of patriotism and good citizenship?

AND SOME NEED CHANGE OF EMPLOYMENT.

Editorial Opinion.

ON ITS LAST LEGS.

Another notice to quit has been given to the MacDonald government. A Yorkshire Labor constituency where the Labor candidate at the general election got a plurality of nearly 5,000 over the Conservative has elected a Conservative by a plurality of some 1,600. The Liberal nominee got a thousand more votes than at the general election. Evidently many Laborites abstained, but their dissatisfaction is no less evident. The Conservatives are weakest in the North. Shipley used to be a Liberal stronghold.
The Liberal candidate was a straight free-trader.
The Conservative candidate promised protection, but disavowed food taxes. So Lord Beaverbrook took nothing. It was a victory for Mr.
Baldwin and his now fairly united party.However interpreted in political terms, it is like the Labor reverses at the municipal elections, the expression of the general discontents.
There is no prospect for the adoption of Mr.
Lloyd George's projects. His party in parliament is divided. His armistice with the government may conceivably expire, even against his will, though no man is quicker at a turn. There is strong discordance in the Labor cabinet.
Everything is at sixes and sevens. The government seems doomed, yet the opposition is in no hurry to let the axe fall. The India Round Table conference meets Wednesday and may last till Christmas.From any responsibility for the grave dis-solutions there to be made the Conservatives must wish to be absolved. At present the guessers see a dissolution just before or at the end of the Christmas recess and an election in February. This would suit the Conservatives. If they return to power, they will want to do so in time to take part in the Ottawa Imperial conference in the spring. But Alnashar may kick over his basket. Mr. MacDonald is used to hairbreadth escapes. Still, Mr. Lloyd George's rescue expedition is multitudes. There are rebels in the cabinet and the constituencies are sullen. Mr. MacDonald can not wish to prolong his administration indefinitely, as Mr. Balfour did. And for Great Britain protection is the magic trouble-pure which so many other countries haven't found it, to postpone much longer its application would be inhuman.—

Keifer's Contact with Lincoln.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Though his heart sympathy was with Mr.
Lincoln in his political principles, and actively engaged under him in the four years of the civil war, General J. Warren Keifer, one of the gallant officers of that war, saw Lincoln but twice—once before he was elected, and once while he was president.The first time he was in the supreme court chamber at Springfield, Illinois. Keifer was either a young lawyer or a law student, and being in the Illinois capital, took advantage of the opportunity to see how the high court of that state operated. It happened that Lincoln appeared before the court that day. It was in February, 1858, and Lincoln even then had come to be looked upon professionally as of great ability though outside of the state he was little known.He was defending a title to real estate under the rule of limitations. Keifer noted that he addressed the court in plain, conversational style and that the members of the court asked questions so that the hearing proceeded in a Socratic way. But for the fact that Keifer had heard of the high regard for Lincoln, he would probably have paid little attention to him. The recollection of him that he carried away was that of a plain man, very plainly dressed. He was ungainly in frame and this was emphasized by his ill-fitting clothes. His trousers were several inches too short, exposing a large and homely foot.He next saw him in 1863, less than a month before his assassination and he was watching the effect of the union fire on a confederate position. General Keifer thought that he had not changed much, and with the exception of better dress, appeared to be much the same as when he first saw him, seven years before, in the Illinois supreme court.

Vitamin Content of Milk.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Recently I told you about Vitamins A and B. Today I am going to say a few words about Vitamin C.Milk has always been sponsored as the ideal food for infants and growing children. Yet we frequently see children who have received their daily quota of milk and do not thrive well. Such children are often stunted and develop poor teeth. This can be explained by the fact that milk is poor in Vitamin C content. The poorly developing child is lacking a certain vitamin content in his daily diet, and the milk has been solely depended upon for this necessary element.Vitamin C is the element necessary for the normal growth and nutrition of the body. It is found in many foods, but particularly in oranges, lemons, limes and tomatoes.Vitamin C is contained in milk, but to a slight degree. The amount of Vitamin C in the milk is variable with the ration of the cow, and with the treatment she milk receives before it is sold to the public. Such factors as the feeding of the cow, the storage of the milk, the cooling, straining, pasteurization and particularly the re-pasteurization of the milk, tend to decrease the amount of Vitamin C.It is for this reason that I would advise the giving of supplementary foods, such as orange juice or tomato juice. Both of these juices are extremely rich in their content of Vitamin C. For this reason they are often spoken of as "antiscorbutic" foods, meaning they will prevent scurvy.Since milk is not particularly rich in Vitamin C content, and for that matter is not particularly high in content of other vitamins, too much faith must not be placed in this food. I do not mean to belittle the value of milk, for the infant and growing child, but there are other important elements that must be given to insure perfect health and growth.It is the advice of all leading baby specialists that food substances rich in vitamins should be introduced in the diet of the infant during the nursing period. This is true whether breast fed or artificially fed. Your baby is never too young to have an occasional teaspoonful of orange or tomato juice added to its feeding.
Oranges, lemons, limes and tomatoes should always grace your table in some tempting form for the older children.—Copyright, 1930, by

The Roger Bacon Cipher.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Some time ago, a remarkable manuscript was discovered by a scholar named Voynich.
This manuscript dates from the thirteenth century, and is considered from any angle as certainly a very extraordinary work. It is strongly believed by some scholars to have been the work of Roger Bacon, one of the gifted forerunners of modern science. If not by Bacon, it was certainly the work of a very remarkable mind, quite the equal of Roger Bacon's.
This amazing manuscript, illustrated with strange drawings, mystic signs, and uninterpretable hieroglyphics, is written throughout in cipher. It was studied minutely for years by the late Professor Newbold, of the University of Pennsylvania. He discovered, he alleged, that the letters of certain meaningless words,
when examined under a powerful microscope, were indubitably made up into groups of stenographic symbols. By the use of seven cipher alphabets, Professor Newbold succeeded in deciphering a certain portion of the manuscript. Death interrupted him in the midst of this work; and the conclusion will have to be done by some other scientist, either one who accepts Professor Newbold's translation, or makes a new translation of the cipher from a different point of view.Perhaps the most impressive feature of the manuscript is the remarkable set of drawings, which can not fail to impress even the casual observer. As Jonathan Norton Leonard says in his absorbing work, "Grassroots of Chemistry": "The little female figure, a process of fertilization and pregnancy; the sinuous tadpole-like things are human spermatozoa, for the first time pictured by man, and the bunches of small grapes are various kinds of body tissue, complete with cellular structure and all Bacon had looked behind one of the most sacred veils of Nature."Even today, we can not fail to be impressed with the three principal works of Bacon long known to us, in the form of the "Opus Majus," the "Opus Minus," and the "Opus Tertium." They were sent to Pope Clement IV, a broad-minded and scholarly man; and were completed by Bacon in eighteen months. They constituted an epitome of scientific knowledge of that day and time; and were filled with scientific speculations, a number of which were afterwards verified—namely in the case of the microscope and the telescope. It is perhaps not generally known that Bacon also wrote about flying machines.Roger Bacon was fully in line with modern science, in attaching the highest importance to mathematics, as the substructure of other sciences. He set himself against the dead hand of authority—and slavish adherence to the dogmatic pronouncements of past scientists. He was the high priest of scientific rationalism, although his views were much tinged with religious superstitions and dogma. He leaned on authority when it appeared sound and was beyond the reach of verification.The cardinal text of his natural philosophy was: experimentum. He will be remembered for the saying: Although other sciences, such as geometry, astronomy, many wonders, yet the things of most service to the state belong to experimental science, which teaches us how to make and use marvellous instruments.—

The Stars Say—

For Friday, Nov. 14

In business affairs, property interests, industry and labor, according to the sidereal influences, there may be a notable breaking up of crystallized conditions, long thwarting and frustrating. This should assist with new plans, and in the fresh avenues of endeavor, as the spirit of initiative is stimulated. But there is a loophole for fraud, misrepresentation and treachery, and also the personal affiliations are under an affecting planetary ray bringing discord and unhappiness.

Those whose birthday it is may find a year in which old obstacles may be removed to make way for fresh ventures and bold initiative in cherished plans, but there is an element of trickery and underhand dealings, calling for much alertness and precaution. Personal affiliations also carry hazards and friction. A child born on this day should be enterprising, steady, and industrious, but possibly will incline to shrewdness and subtlety, intrigue or diplomacy. It may have some fivulous or ungracious personal proclivities to overcome.

"Use Palmolive Beads for safe washing of silk hosiery"

advise Silk Manufacturers of World Renown

CORTICELLI...HOLEPROOF...KAYSER...LUXITE
PHOENIX...VANITY FAIR...VAN RAALTE

WOULD you protect your silk hosiery against unnecessary runs... keep colors like new... prolong wear? Then read what the great silk manufacturers advise as the correct way to wash silk stockings—all fine fabrics.

For years these master craftsmen have created America's finest hosiery. For years, too, they have used no soap for washing costly silk stockings that did not contain olive oil. Because—they declare—such a soap dissolves, cleanses and rinses away in water cool enough to be safe for silks.

Called "Ideal Soap for Silks"

These leading silk manufacturers submitted Palmolive Beads to exhaustive tests in their own laboratories. And now all of them acclaim this new discovery "the ideal soap for silks."

"Its olive and palm oils give a gentle cleansing action that protects the life of silk fibre," declares Kayser.

"It rinses away with the greatest ease," says Van Raalte.

"We foresee longer wear for silk stockings with this new and different fine fabric soap," writes Phoenix.

Approved by Committee of 17

What hosiery manufacturers have found to be true of Palmolive Beads in laboratory tests, American women find true in home washing of silks. The Committee of 17—a group of America's most distinguished women... called recently to the Ritz Hotel to watch tests of the new soap discovery—unanimously voted Palmolive Beads "the ideal soap for all fine fabrics."

Give your own lovely lingerie and sheer silk hosiery the protection of this new bead soap. Order a box from your dealer today.

Vanity Fair interprets in clear and happy the fine and style that are an essential part of the modern woman's dress today. "If you wash silk hosiery with Palmolive Beads," says Vanity Fair, "you will obtain the longest life and beauty possible from silk stockings."

The Committee of 17

These famous women—leaders representing every phase of feminine activity, from all over the United States—approved and sponsor Palmolive Beads.

SOWING AND REAPING IS TOPIC OF SERMON

People's Choir Pro-
Music for Calvary
Church Revival.

Bush of Sebring, who revival at Calvary Church spoke last
sermon subject,
saying using as
whatsoever a man
shall he also reap.

People's choir sang
"Coral Underwood Deep River." There
responses to the altar of Rev. Bush's Model class attended
a body tonight
a sermon he said
sowing we are living four lives and in all lives we are sowing. There is the life we sow in church our social life our business life and our secret life.

"Many appear," he said, "religious in church but they let down the bars to a certain degree in their social life and when it comes to their business life their religion disappears but when it comes to the secret life this is hidden from every one but God."

ENDURANCE ATTEMPT ENDS IN MISFORTUNE

Plane Burns in Forced Landing; Refueling Craft Falls in Bay.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—An attempt to shatter the world's airplane endurance record ended in double misfortune early today when the "American Legion" burned in a forced landing and its refueling ship, "Miss Queen," fell into Jamaica bay near the Jamaica sea airport.

Captain John S. Donaldson, promoter and pilot of the endurance ship, was uninjured, but his co-pilot, Edward Weiner, former war flier, suffered a broken ankle and lacerations.

Charles Sobie, pilot of the refueling plane, and George Adams, his assistant on the hose, were drenched but were pulled out of the water uninjured.

The "American Legion" ran out of gas and was forced down on the edge of the airport, catching fire as it landed on a cement roadway. It was completely burned.

The "American Legion" had been aloft only 16 hours in an effort to break the record of 647 hours established by Dale Jackson and Red O'Brien last summer.

Police Investigate
Benefit Ticket Sales

Police today continued their search for a person or persons selling tickets to a benefit concert here at $1 each. The ticket purports to entitle the bearer to a concert in the Elks lodge rooms, sponsored by the ladies' auxiliary of the G. A. R. The local auxiliary is not sponsoring a benefit recital, officers say.

Sale of the tickets was brought to the attention of Mrs. C. R. Miller of 715 Bennett street, president of the auxiliary, yesterday. She enlisted the efforts of police in an attempt to break up the sale of the tickets here.

SEE WAR'S END

Bakers Expected To Straighten Out Troubles After Oct.

Prospects of a windup of the war which Marion bakers have been engaged for the last week was seen today by the head of one of Marion's principal bakeries following a visit paid here yesterday by a representative of the State Bakers Association.

The state official has succeeded in effecting a conciliation among most of the bakers but several of the smaller bakeries are holding out, it is said.

Bread has been selling for two cents less per loaf since the war began last week. The standard 16-ounce loaf is eight cents in most cases while some grocers are selling it for seven.

No Recount of Votes
Here Asked by Sugrue

A recount in Marion county of votes cast for state senator has not yet been asked by the Seneca county board of elections it was reported today by C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk of the local board.
Following reports from Tiffin yesterday that Ralph Sugrue, Democrat, would ask such a recount in the seven counties making up the thirteenth and thirtieth districts, Sugrue, in the official returns transmitted by 182 voters after his election, seemed assured last Wednesday following the Nov. 4 election.

Have you passed
the noonday of Life?

Then make the down road happy by keeping your strength and health. An unfailing warning of a rundown condition is the diminishing of the red-blood-cells.

A DEFICIENCY of red-cells in the blood is usually followed by physical exhaustion, loss of appetite, underweight, nervousness and pimples
and boils. When your red-blood-
cells are only 80%
you are NOT yourself—60% is very dangerous.

Common sense suggests that every possible step be taken to correct such a condition. Take S.S.S. before each meal. It will build up and enrich your blood, give you new life and vitality!

Your appetite will pick up—you will feel like yourself again! Keep the down road bright by keeping your red-blood-cells fighting for you. Get the large size. At all drug stores. S.S.S.

Builds Sturdy Health

When your gums
shrink away from your teeth you have pyorrhea. Allow this disease to continue and your teeth will fall
out. We can treat
pyorrhea successfully,
save your teeth and restore your gums to a healthy condition. The only alternative is false teeth, and no one wants a month full of false
teeth.
